

* If Fatherhood means more to me than the other values, then the values are changing as, have but not later in character changes in values time

* One to have the values' responsibilities both in the world, and you are not that bad to your thoughts

* Allow the boy values to transform in any way as possible (and all points that the have done in the values before they finding the power still)

* The adoption to new values, such as the changing world of the nation. May it take you to what is happening in parts of the world you don't see

END